

12 00 00

Abstract

The invention relates to a reminder functionality in respect to a call that should be established. An object of the invention is to provide a new and improved approach for assisting the user of a phone, especially of a mobile phone in reminding him that a certain number or a certain person should be called. The invention proposes to remind for a certain call which should be established, by activating a reminder functionality for indicating in advance at a phone means, especially a mobile phone, from which said call should be established, that said call should be established.